QUESTIONS.

EDITOR BULLETIN: -Allow me to propound, for the benefit of those whom they concern, the following questions:-

Who spirited away the Spaniard? Did anybody pay a witness in a certain criminal case to leave the country? Who failed to put that same witness under bonds that he might be produced when needed?

Was the witness wanted by the Reform Government, or was he wanted to be away? What became of the case eventually? Was there a bobbery in Court, and was there an Attorney-General

Was there any threats arising out o' the case? What was threatened, and who was threatened? Was the much-vaunted Reform Government implicated in the case, or was it not?

WANT TO KNOW.

IMPORTANT TO INVESTORS. Auctioneer Morgan holds, on Saturday, one of the largest sales of city real estate, plantation stocks and government bonds ever held in Honolulu, the real estate comprising nearly an entire block, known as the Booth estate property, situated in the very heart of the city. An unusual of portunity is presented to small as well as large investors by the offering of this valuable property, for the erection of retail, jobbing and wholesale stores are certain to command high rentals, and must have a large future value. There is no better investment at present to recommend to investors of trust funds and to capitalists and speculators. A large map of the property can be seen at Mr. Morgan's auction rooms, at which place all further particulars can be had concerning this important sale. Immediately after the sale of the Real Estate Mr. Morgan will sell some valuable plantation shares, also Ice Stock and a lot of Government Bonds. A large attendance is expected and full prices are looked

YESTERDAY afternoon Mr. W. S. Terry and Miss Cassie A. Reamer were married at the residence of Mr. F. W. Damon, The bridal couple departed by the steamer W. G. Hall this morning. When they were boarding the steamer a number of lady and gentleman friends threw handfuls of rice and old shoes after them.

WHEN the train was coming to town fron Manana, last evening, and when near Aki's rice mill, a first class car jumped the track. The train was travelling very slowly at the time. The car did not upset nor receive any injury. Several passengers were in it at the time, but were unhurt. The passengers in the next car behind. which kept on the track, were alarmed and jumped out. Some of them got stuck in mud up to their middles, which was their only misfortune.

THE exhibition of fire-works on the Esplanade last evening, was not very interesting. Between two and three hundred persons, chiefly natives and Chinese, had assembled within the enclosure. The fire-works had become damp from previous exposure and consequently did not work satisfactorily. The Hawaiian band being engaged elsewhere, the Portuguese band was employed to furnish music. Another exhibition, probably under more favorable circumstances, will be given, at the same place on Saturday evening.

Reception at the Bride's Parental Residence -- A Brilliant Event.

The marriage of Miss Annie Kahawalu Dowsett to Mr. Robert B. Brenham was solemnized in St. Andrew's Cathedral yesterday evening, with very brilliant and beautiful accessories to give auspiciousness to the event. Elaborate and splendid floral decorations gave a festal appearance to the interior of the grand edifice. Great bouquets were placed effectively on the ecclesiastical fur-niture, festoons of delicate vines hung between the pillars, here were banks of green and there beds of choicest roses. Railings were cladwith vines spangled with flowers. Bouquets on pil'ars and chandeliers were fastened with silken ribbons. the long ends of which fluttered gracefully down. An arch of palm leaves and roses was reared over the approach to the altar, being surmounted with a gorgeous marriage bell of pink and white roses, and over this a white dove held streamers of white satin ribbon, on which appeared the surnames of bride and bridegroom. It is proper to state, in passing, that the decorations were designed by Mrs. James W. Robert-son, Mrs. Geo. E. Boardman, and Mrs. Paymaster Corwin. Before the appointed hour of seven the cathedral was crowded with invited guests and others, Messrs. H. M. Whitney, jr., J. H. Wodehouse, jr., S. A. Monsarrat, and E. F. Bishop being the ushers. The front pews on either side of the centre aisle were imbedded in roses, and were occupied by Mrs. J. I. Dowsett, Mrs. M. C. Monsarrat, Mr. J. I. Dowsett, jr., Mr. M. D. Monsarrat, and Hon. M. P. Deady of San Francisco. Mr. Wray Taylor and lor punctually started a wedding air on the instrument. The bridegroom the next moment entered from the side and stood at the front of the chancel. There was no delay before the bridal party marched up the aisle to Lohengrin's wedding march on the organ-the bride leaning on the arm of her father, Hon. James I., Dowsett, followed by Miss Mary Dowsett, maid of honor, and Mr. J. M. Monsarrat, best man, then bridesmaids and groomsmen, namely, Miss Jameson and Mr. Ed. Dowsett, Miss Lizzie Coney and Mr. W. T. Monsarrat, Miss Emma Davidson and Mr. Alika C. Dowsett.

Rev. Aiex. Mackintosh with marked impressiveness joined the happy pair in wedlock, a full choral service being rendered by the choir, beginning with the hymn, "How welcome was the call." The ceremony was completed beneath the floral bell in front of the altar, followed by the signing of the register in the vestry. As the party left the edifice the organist played Mendelssohn's wedding march with his accustomed skill. The bride looked lovely, her charms of face and figure being not the least causes of admiration. She wore a dress of white moire silk with train, the front panels of gold broca ded silk, a splendid veil and diamonds completing her adornments. Miss Mary Dowsett was dressed in a corn-colored costume, Miss Jameson in one of peach blow, Miss Coney nile green, and Miss Davidson shrimp pink.

The wedding reception was field at "Hauhaukoe," residence of the bride's parents, Palama. A large lanai had been built for the occasion, having a solid dancing floor and roof of iron. Colored lanterns were hung profusely amongst the trees and shrubbery and all over the sides of the houses. Flags of all nations new and bright canopied and draped the interior of the lanai, which was further beautified with one of the richest displays of foliage and bloom ever seen here under a roof. One of the prettiest floral designs was that of a harp at the head of the hall. Three bowerlike alcoves were constructed on the east side of the lanai-the central one for the bridal reception, that on the right for refreshments, and the one to the left for the orchestra. The couple received congratulations from the guests standing on a carpet beneath a beautiful floral marriage bell. Their Majesties the King and Queen were among the earliest in the long procession that went forward to felicitate the joyful couple. They were attended by Mr. Jas. W. Robertson, Vice Chamberlain, and Mrs. Robertson, lady in waiting to Her Majesty. Over a thousand invitations had been issued for the wedding, and a large proportion of those invited responded. The throng was so great as to make it almost impossible to procure a full list, but the names of those attending, so far as noted down, will be found below in alphabetical order; Mons G B d'Anglade, French Commissioner; Hon and Mrs W F Allen, Dr Anderson, Mrs A T Atkinson, Miss Atkinson, Mr Atkinson, jr, Mr and Mrs W G Ashley, ian Orchestra. the Misses Along.

Throughout the evening a magnificent collation was available, and universally availed of by the company at their pleasure, in the dining hall. There were viands to tempt every variety of appetite and palate, and enough remaining at the dispersing of the company to repeat the banquet. Besides there were refreshments on service the whole time both up and down stairs. In short, the festive hospitality was on a princely scale. Dancing was maintained by a large number till "Hawaii Ponoi" signalised the close of the programme at two o'clock this morning. Music of fine quality was furnished by the Royal Hawai-
